2011 Annual Program Report

Multi-Faceted Growth

The 21 students of the 2010/2011 class represent the largest class to graduate from SCIL in its 14 year history. The SCIL alumni total will soon reach 216. While that kind of growth is impressive, it is the personal growth of each individual that is making a difference in our communities.

Over the past year, the SCIL Board of Directors has focused on three specific goals:

1. Create a stronger SCIL network—in November 2010, the alumni of SCIL took on a significant volunteer role with the traveling Smithsonian Exhibit in Reedsburg; SCIL has sponsored a “social” after the October class where alumni can interact with current students; the list serve continues to communicate community events/opportunities.
2. Expand leadership opportunities—SCIL will be promoting a leadership workshop/conference. In 2010, this event was sponsored by SCIL and held at UW-Baraboo. In 2011, our organization has agreed to work with Leadership Wisconsin, including scholarship offers for attending alumni; a continuing focus on leadership during class sessions.
3. Better communicate the value of SCIL to employers, elected officials, and potential participants—as evidenced by our largest class ever, SCIL has been a successful promoter. Several local employers send a representative year after year. Last year, Reedsburg Area Medical Center received a leadership award for its contribution to SCIL over the years. In 2011, St. Clare Hospital is the leadership award recipient. SCIL has been blessed with classroom presentations from state and locally elected officials, senior level executives, and distinguished professionals from all walks of life.

The class project continues to evolve. This year, students have been asked to find a way to contribute to their community. Either as an individual or as a team, what actions can we take to enrich our surroundings? Perhaps the student is already contributing but has the know-how and passion to take their involvement to the next level!

The success and growth of SCIL is only possible with the involvement of a wide array of individuals and organizations. It is the contributions of local employers, students, classroom speakers, and the Board of Directors that make SCIL successful. A special thank you goes out to Jenny Erickson and Lynn Zick. Jenny is the Executive Director and has been the face of the program for the past six years, while Lynn Zick makes her impact behind the scenes but has been an invaluable asset to SCIL.

Tammy Koenecke (RAMC), giving a presentation at the Healthcare session.

In Their Own Words...Two 2011 Graduates

In early 2010, I was introduced to the idea of attending a program that was described as “interesting and eye-opening” by past participants; the Sauk County Institute of Leadership. Although I had worked in Baraboo for close to 20 years, the individuals I spoke with assured me that I would find the program returns well on the investment.

I am the training coordinator for the City of Baraboo Police Department and so I resolved myself to the fact that I would register for the program myself. I could then evaluate the program and make an informed decision on whether or not to send staff members in the future.

I had only to attend the first few classes to realize that the program would far surpass my expectations. Remember when I earlier wrote “I had worked in Baraboo for close to 20 years...”? The information I was exposed to in just the first few sessions certainly made me feel as if I were a newcomer to the area...so much information about our area I had never known!

The course brings the history of our county and its leaders quickly into focus. A leader cannot possibly know how to lead into the future until they know our past. This course provides a clear path for the attendee to learn the past, present and future of Sauk County while simultaneously challenging the students to think “outside the box”.

As one in a career endlessly pursuing high quality training, I highly recommend this course. As a result of my attendance, I have grown not only as a leader, but as a person. The City of Baraboo Police Department will be recommending this training to our staff in the future.

The Sauk County Institute of Leadership is an experience and an adventure that has provided me with new leadership skills, as well as knowledge of the county and connections that would have taken years to acquire on my own.

The engaging sessions provided a whirlwind tour of topics and issues important to our county, and introduced the people behind the scenes who work hard to make our county a great place to live. Being a participant has inspired me to become more involved in the community and to pursue opportunities to give back time personally and professionally.
